

Is the 2006 HGTV dreamHOME Really a Dream Home?

A Florida photographer coughs up $20 for a tour and reports on the experience.

Chuluota, FL (PRWEB) March 11, 2006 -- Following a week long trip to help their son deploy from Ft. Bragg, Donald Thomas and his wife take a long way back home through Asheville, North Carolina. The quaint mountain city is near the Biltmore Estate and a newer attraction; the 2006 HGTV dreamHOME. The Chuluota, FL couple are great fans of HGTV and have faithfully entered the dreamHOME sweepstakes as often as allowed. It was a wonderful opportunity to actually see the Grand Prize in America's most promoted residential giveaway.

Within days following the tour, Donald has written of the experience and published it along with photographs on his own Home and Gardens Web Site at www.HG-OL.com. A direct link to the piece is located on the front page. His focus was on aspects and views of the luxury mountain top home that were not incorporated into HGTV's promotion of the sweepstakes.

Donald A. Thomas, Jr. is a professional photographer and host of www.ThomasDigitalPics.com. His work is displayed in a number of Chuluota area venues and on the Web Site.
